WHAT ARE PUBLIC INVESTMENT PROJECTS?

Public Investment Projects (PIPs) are initiatives from local, regional, or national governments aimed at creating works and services that benefit society as a whole. The main goal of PIPs is to drive socio-economic and cultural development, improve the living conditions of the population, and reduce inequalities. To carry out these projects, public budget resources are used, and their planning and execution follow procedures and standards set by the national government. Essentially, PIPs are crucial for the progress and well-being of the population.
